STONE CHICKEN TROUGH

Once used on a provincial Chinese farm to hold water or animal feed, this early 19th-century stone trough is celebrated today for its organic form and rustic authenticity. Hand-carved from solid limestone, the trough has a shallow, rectangular form with slight asymmetry. The surface of the stone still maintains its raw organic texture, even after centuries of use. A drainage hole has been carved into one side, making this trough ideal as a statement garden planter or unexpected sink basin.
