This rustic wheelbarrow is a turn-of-the-century American push cart once used for harvesting and selling flowers. Originally used on a flower farm in Lafayette, Indiana, the vintage cart has a one-of-a-kind design hand-crafted of scrap wood and found materials. The wooden body is painted with a light blue milk paint, now perfectly distressed from years of use. A charming addition to a garden or patio, we love this painted wagon as a picturesque planter or bar cart.
