$2,980

Chicago-based artist Michael Thompson creates unique works from found materials and vintage ephemera, best known for his split bamboo kite series initiated by the artist over a decade ago. This one-of-a-kind sculpture entitled "Basilisk" is a foray into more rigid materials, yet still relies on layered materials to create a landscape of texture. Comprised of paper-thin patinated metal disks connected at a central rod, the snake-like sculpture has a striking presence and has a fantastic rough, organic finish that adds fantastic texture to its surroundings, indoors or out.
