Once used on a provincial Chinese farm to hold water or animal feed, this early 20th-century stone trough is celebrated today for its organic form and rustic authenticity. Hand-carved from solid limestone, the trough has a cylindrical form with slightly tapered sides and a deep interior basin. The round trough has minimalist appeal, its simple form showcasing the natural color and texture of dense limestone. Used as a sink basin or as a planter for lush greenery, this chiseled stone trough adds fantastic texture to any space.

Trough has been drilled with a drainage hole.
