Once used on a provincial Chinese farm to hold water or animal feed, this early 20th-century stone trough is celebrated today for its organic form and rustic authenticity. Hand-carved from solid limestone, the small trough has a rectangular form, etched with a pattern of vertical grooves and a subtle raised border. The chiseled surface of the stone has weathered with time, developing subtle asymmetry and color variation. Drilled with a drainage hole, the deep basin can be used to hold lush greenery or striking florals, a wonderful addition to any garden or patio. Continued...
