STUDED NANMU LOCK BOX

$1,980

c. 1800 • Jiangsu, China • Materials, Wood, Brass • Collection #BJD132

W: 16.0" D: 10.0" H: 8.5"

A special place for storing jewelry and other treasures, this early 19th-century lock box was created by a skilled artisan in China's Jiangsu province. The box is minimally decorated to showcase the rich, swirling grain of the nanmu wood, an esteemed softwood found throughout China. The interior contains a small lidded compartment and a removable dividing tray. Accented with simple hardware and several brass studs to protect the lid, this box is a beautiful storage piece for the office or bedroom.
